We sincerely hope this publication will stimulate your interest in the social and economic future of our island. Please feel free to contact the Department of Commerce or the relevant sources if you require additional information.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The 2001 Statistical Yearbook is the twenty-third annual publication of compendia, detailing both historical and current economic and social characteristics of the territory. The Statistical Yearbook serves both as a summary of aggregated statistics about American Samoa and also as a guide to source references of information and detailed subject-matter specifications then can be presented here.

We would like to commend the many government agencies (both local and federal), private businesses and individuals who have contributed diligently in making this publication possible.

We hope that the users of this book will find it useful and informative. We welcome comments and suggestions for improving the Statistical Yearbook series. A self-addressed suggestion and comment sheet is provided at the end of the book for you to provide us with your comments.

GENERAL INFORMATION ABOUT AMERICAN SAMOA

History

Although the exact date will probably never be determined, most archaeologists believed the first Polynesians settled in what is now American Samoa around 600 BC. By that time, Polynesians had established themselves on the eastern tip of Tutuila near the village of Tula. These first inhabitants probably arrived from Tonga and the Samoa's from the west, perhaps by the way of Indonesia, the New Hebrides and Fiji.

Samoa's long isolation from the western world ended in 1722 when the Dutch explorer, Jacob Roggeveen, came upon the islands. It wasn't until 1831, however, that European influence had any real impact. In that year, John Williams of the London Missionary Society arrived with eight Tahitian missionaries. Samoans took to Christianity with enthusiasm and remain deeply religious to this day.

By the 1900 both Germany and the United States were claiming the Samoan Islands. Germany annexed several islands, which now comprise Western Samoa; the U.S. took Tutuila to use Pago Pago Bay as a coaling station for naval ships.

As Japan began emerging as an international power in the mid-1930s, the US Naval station on Tutuila began to acquire new strategic importance. By 1940, the American Samoa Islands had become a training and staging area for the US Marine Corps. It was this massive influx of Americans that – for better or worse – gave American Samoans a sudden taste of the benefits of a modern western society.

Fortunately for the islands and for the Samoan people, none of the fighting which scared so many of the Pacific Islands during World War II ever reached Samoa. In 1945, the Marines left as suddenly as they had arrived, and American Samoa returned to the quiet, peaceful way of life it had enjoyed before the great conflict.

Today, American Samoa is an unincorporated territory of the United States administered by the Department of the Interior.

Geography

American Samoa covers an area of 77sq. miles and lies 3,680km (2,300 miles) southwest of Hawaii, 2,560km (1,590 miles) from the northernmost tip of New Zealand and along 14 degrees latitude south of the equator. Its immediate neighbor is Western Samoa, an independent state 128km (73 miles) to the west. The administrative center and capital of American Samoa is Pago Pago on the main island of Tutuila.

Tutuila contains the spectacular Pago Pago harbor, which cuts deep into the island's south central shoreline.

Approximately 1km southeast of Tutuila's eastern tip is the island of Aunu'u. The islands of Ofu, Olosega and Ta'u lying 160km (90 miles) to the east of Tutuila are referred to as the Manu'a Group. Swains Island (an atoll near the Tokelau Islands Group) lies about 200 miles north of Tutuila and is part of American Samoa.

Climate

American Samoa's climate is typically tropical, with temperatures seldom exceeding the mid-80. Nights are balmy and cooling trade winds blow almost constantly. As in most tropical areas, there are frequent heavy rains but, even during the so-called rainy season (December-March), there are extended periods of bright sunshine on a daily basis. Generally, the weather is sunnier from June through September.

Population

The official population count of American Samoa as of April 1, 2000 is 57,291. The mid-year estimate for the same year of 57,700 is calculated from vital registration and inter-censal migration. The current estimate showed an increase of about 900 persons from the 1999 estimate of 56,800. The annual population growth rate calculated from the 1990 and 2000 was 2.0 percent compared to a 3.7 percent annual growth between 1980 and 1990. American Samoans are classified as American Nationals.

Tourism

The government encourages tourism, seeing it as an important contributor to the economy and also as a chance for outsiders to learn more about the Samoan culture and see it's beauty. Close to 7,000 real tourists passed through American Samoa in 2000. The visitor finds beautiful beaches on these lush greens volcanic islands, unspoiled pristine villages and coastal area, tropical flowers and shrubs, sleepy lagoons and encircling coral reefs – a good atmosphere for relaxation.

Economy

Canned tuna remained as the principle-manufactured commodity of the territory. Two major US tuna canneries adjoining Pago Pago harbor form the backbone of the local economy providing a thriving fish cannery industry employing close to 5,000 workers. Fishing boats from the US, New Zealand, Korea and Taiwan supply catches to the canneries. In 2000, the canneries shipped out close to $340 millions worth of canned tuna to the US.

Local commerce operates mainly to support goods and services directly or indirectly to the tuna canneries and the American Samoa Government. Local businesses consist mainly of small retail outlets and family transportation.

Unless exempted, every business operating in American Samoa must maintain an annual business license. Only those carried on by, or directly and solely for local government or US Government, or farmers marketing their own product in its natural state are exempted. Corporations organized under laws other than those of the territory are by definition “foreign” and must obtain a separate permit to transact business.

Communications

Good communication systems are available in American Samoa. The Comsat satellite system has brought new improved telephone and high quality facsimile and television services. Through this system the territory is in direct touch with countries in the Pacific Basin and also with more than 100 other nations. The territory itself has more than 11,000 installed telephones on single, two-party and multi-party lines. High technology and information superhighway is very much alive in American Samoa with reasonable connections to the United States and Worldwide markets. Telex and telegraph services are also available. The post office is part of the US system. The same standard postal rates apply in American Samoa.

Transport

Pago Pago’s commodious harbor is noted for its deep water and few navigational hazards. Regular and fully containerized shipping services link with West Coast US, Honolulu, New Zealand, Australia, Japan and regional Pacific Island countries.

The island government is anxious to maintain Pago Pago as a major Trans-shipment and trading center for the South Pacific. Incentives are given by waiving port charges and dues up to 30 to 60 days for Trans-shipment freight passing through. Bunkering, stevedoring and fuel prices there are amongst the most competitive in the Pacific. Well-equipped docks can handle merchants or passenger ships of all types.

The international airport at Tafuna is 15km (9 miles) from the capital by a good tar sealed road. Regular jet services connect with the US, New Zealand, Australia, Fiji, Tonga, Vanuatu, New Caledonia, Tahiti, and the Cook Islands. Airlines are Hawaiian Airline, Polynesian Airline, Samoa Air, and Air New Zealand and Air Nauru via Apia or Nadi.

Section One

This section presents statistics on growth, geographic distribution and composition of the population of American Samoa.

The 2000 Census recorded a total population of 57,291 in American Samoa. This represents an increase of 10,518 persons (22 percent) since the last population count of 46,773 in 1990. The 2000 Census reflects a much lower annual growth rate (2.0 percent) compared to the 3.7 percent between 1980 and 1990.

Our population is very young. The median age of the local population remained about 20 years: demanding much needed services for education, health and medical, family advocacy, and employment opportunities. The gender ratio in 2000 was reported at 104 males for every 100 females.

The population of American Samoa is unevenly distributed. Western Tutuila holds the largest population of 32,435 people followed by Eastern Tutuila with 23,441 people. Manu'a and Swains Island are combined with 1,415 people.

The average population density for American Samoa in 2000 was 286 persons per square kilometer, ranging from 20 persons per square kilometer for Manu'a to 444 persons per square kilometer for the Western district. The Eastern district is in the middle with 411 persons per square kilometer.

Mid-year population estimates are calculated using the Balancing Equation Method (i.e., taking the current population plus births in one year minus deaths in one year and adding net migration.) Although natural increase (birth minus deaths) is reasonably accurate, estimates of net migration are fairly weak due to the absence of current data on resident movement and intending residents. In this respect, the net migration component of the mid-year population estimate is calculated using the intercensal method (i.e., adding the natural increase to the previous census count minus migration total for the intercensal period.) The 2001 estimates now stood at 59,400.

Section Two

VITAL AND HEALTH STATISTICS

This section presents data on births, deaths, life expectancy, marriages, diseases, out patient visits and hospital discharges.

Mid-year population estimates were adjusted between 1991 and 1999 as a result of the 1995 household survey and the 2000 census count. With such, rates and ratios have also changed reflecting the effect of denominators. The Crude Birth Rate (CBR) trend registered an all time low of 27.9 per 1000 persons in over 30 years. There are many contributing factors that can affect CBR. For instance, lower CBR correlates to lower fertility due to effective family planning educational/awareness and active participation of women in the workforce. The Crude Death Rate (CDR) have dropped from as high as 5.8 per 1000 persons in the early 70's to as low as 4.0 in 2001. Deaths under one year of age (Infant Mortality Rate (IMR)) have also improved from a double digit in the late 90's to 8.5 per 1000 live births in 2001. Population natural growth is defined as total births minus total deaths (assuming both systems of registration are complete.) In the last five years, natural growth averaged at about a 1,446 persons. The only other factor contributing to the local population is net migration (difference of immigrants minus emigrants.) The new addition (from natural growth) has significant implications to early childhood programs, health and medical services, educational planning, and family welfare.

Heart disease remained the leading cause of death in the territory followed by Malignant Neoplasm. With the exclusion of flu syndrome/influenza from total diseases, Dengue Fever was the major health complaint in 2001 (data suggesting an outbreak this year.) Chickenpox was the second largest complaint with over 300 cases. Dog bite was the number one non-communicable complaint with over 500 cases treated at the hospital. The dog problem is in the rise again.

Over 160,000 visits were recorded at the Medical/Health Centers. Most visits were to the ER/OPD followed by the Dental Clinic. There were 8,195 cases discharged from the Hospital in 2001, with total patient-days of 27,145 and an average length of stay of 3.9 days. The occupancy rate at the Hospital was only 26.2 percent. Life expectancy at birth for American Samoa is 68.5 years for males and 76.2 for females. These estimates were calculated from the 1990 population count and average deaths between two years before and after the census.

The trend in recorded marriages dropped from a high of 335 in 1997 to 254 in 2001.

Section Three

EDUCATION

This section presents statistical data on school enrollment, educational achievement and institutions.

Total school enrollment continued to climb in the five-year series despite the constant number of institutions. The enrollment increased by about 370 students every year or about 2 percent annually. Elementary school enrollment (those ages 6 to 13) totaled over eleven thousand. Apart from the college enrollment, public (government) schools accounted for over 85 percent of total enrollment. Private school enrollment at the high school level continued to drop.

ASCC enrollment has also increased with the majority being American Samoa female ages 15 to 25. Student status remained at a 60/40 percent ratio of full/part time. Most students (over 40 percent) enrolled in Liberal Arts program. Degrees awarded have dropped in the past five years.

Section Four

LAW ENFORCEMENT

This section presents statistical data on crime, traffic accidents, firearm registration, jail population, fire, and court activities.

Total offenses reported to the Department of Public Safety once again dropped since 1998. Assault (1st and 2nd degree) is the number one Part One Offense, followed by Burglary. While the number of Criminal Homicide remained fairly low, Forcible Rape is becoming a community concern.

On the Part Two Offences, Disorderly Conduct was the major public complaint with about 30 percent of reported offenses. Driving Under Influence (DUI) followed with over 200 reported cases and Property Damage/Vandalism with over 150 cases. Narcotic is on the rise (reported cases doubled since 5 years ago). Likewise Sex Offenses is increasing.

Juvenile offenses reported dropped in the past two years despite a big jump in 1998. Burglary and Assault were the highest offenses reported. Runaway and Disorderly Conduct were the common complaints of Part Two Juvenile Offenses.

Traffic accidents remained at over a thousand one hundred in the past four years (an average of about 92 accidents a month or 3 a day.) The number of traffic accidents have almost tripled compared to 20 years ago. However, traffic fatalities remained very low despite the increase in accidents.

Close to 700 new cases were file at the High Court of American Samoa in 2000, in addition to almost 2,800 cases pending from 1999. Of those, Relinquishment Proceedings was the highest followed by Civil Action, Divorce and Criminal. Significant increases were recorded in Criminal cases and Juvenile cases. Likewise, Traffic citations jumped from 6,300 to 8,200 between 1999 and 2000. Traffic citations accounted for 87 percent of all District Court cases filed.

No data reported for Fire and Tafuna Correctional Facility for 2000 and 2001.

Section Six

LAND USE/REGISTRATION, HOUSING CHARACTERISTICS AND BUILDING PERMITS

This section presents statistics on land use, land ownership registration and tenure, housing characteristics, building permits, type and value of construction activities.

Total land area in American Samoa is 48,767 acres and about two thirds of the land is steeply sloping and virtually inaccessible. From a Land Use Study of American Samoa conducted in 1977, about 32 percent of developed land was for Residential Use; 29 percent for all Agricultural Use; 13 percent used by Government; 12 percent for Church Use and the remainder in Transportation, Communication, Educational and Recreational Uses.

A total of 7,649 acres of land was registered with the Territorial Registrars Office in 2001 (a slight increase of about 38 acres from 2000.) Much of this increase in land registration is due to Individually Owned and Communal Land Uses.

From the household sample survey of population and housing conducted in 1995, a total of 8,908 housing units counted: 8,367 were owner-occupied and 541 housing units were renter-occupied. About 84 percent were single detached units compared to 90 percent in 1990. The median number of rooms per housing unit was 4.6 compared to 3.5 in 1980. Households/Families are getting smaller: the average number of persons per occupied housing unit was 6.3 (a drop from 7.0 in 1990).

A total of 644 land use permits were processed in 2000 (including permits for new structures, extension, repair and alteration) with an estimated value of private capital investment of about $13 million.

Section Seven

INTERNATIONAL ARRIVALS AND DEPARTURES

This section presents statistics on arrivals and departures by purpose and citizenship of travelers.

Close to 89,000 travelers arrived or passed through the territory in 2001. Except in 1997 with a serious under-reporting of immigration data, arrivals have remained at about the 90,000 mark for the past four years. The net number of travelers (arrivals minus departures) in 2001 amounted to a gain of only 4 compared to a gain of 6,470 in 2000; another gain of 2,795 in 1999; a loss of 1,226 in 1998 and another gain of 1,681 in 1997. In total, the net increase in arrivals minus departures in the past five years amounted to 9,724 (an average of almost 2,000 every year.) Despite this gain of close to 10,000 in the last five years, over 5,000 residents moved off-island and another 1,600 for employment abroad. Visit friends/relatives gained by over 8,000 and Business with close to 6,000 in the same period.

Tourist arrivals (excluding cruise-ship) at 6,535 in 2001 slightly went up. Our tourism market is made up of US with 60 percent, New Zealand with 29 percent and Australia with 5 percent. The composition of Business travelers followed the tourism pattern with the addition of Samoa: US with 43 percent, New Zealand with 25 percent, Samoa with 20 percent and Australia with 5 percent.

Resident arrivals in 2001 totaled 43,670 (an increase of almost 3,500 in 2000). In the five-year series, resident travelers arriving in the territory totaled 189,825 versus 190,700 departing (reflecting a net out-migration of the resident population of about a 1,000 each year.).

Section Eight

LOCAL ELECTION

This section presents data on the American Samoa Voter Registration, election results and participation by voting districts, village, age and gender of voters.

A new registration and verification system with issuance of Voter Identification Cards began in 1994. In the last general election of November 7, 2000, 15,598 voters were registered and verified. The new system has now bypassed the more than 15,000 names in the Official Roll of Registered Voters carried from the 1992 Registration before the verification process.

A total of 8,117 of registered voters were females and 8,073 (52 percent) were between the age of 18 and 34 years. Over 12,000 (77 percent) of registered voters went to the voting booths in the 2000 General Election. Representative District Tualauta held the most voters with 2,428 followed by Representative District Ituau with 1,900. Maoputasi No. 9 and Fofō were the other Representative Districts with over 1,000 voters. Manu'a Representative District No. 2 had the most voter turnout with 83 percent followed by Ituau with 81 percent.

Section Nine

GOVERNMENT FINANCE

This section presents statistics relating to the American Samoa Government revenues and expenditures.

The American Samoa Government collected revenues totaling $144.4 millions and spent about $152.9 millions resulting in an FY-1997 deficit of about $8.5 million. However, the cumulative deficit had grown to $34.5 millions at the end of fiscal year.

In the FY-1997 Government Financial Report, Intergovernmental-DOI grant accounted for 67.4 percent of all revenues while taxes collected locally accounted for $34.1 millions or 23.6 percent. General Fund revenues amounted to about $63.0 millions and expended $74.1 millions resulting in a deficit of the General Fund of $11.1 millions. Contributing to the continuous General Fund deficit is the lopsided trend in spending versus collection. In the five year series, collection increased by an annual average of about 3.6 percent while spending moved at a much faster pace of 7.8 percent annually. Until both sides of the General Fund situation equalizes, efforts to reduce the current deficit will be fruitless.

Local government revenues (mostly taxes, charges and fees) accounted for only 33 percent of total revenue. Taxes increased steadily from about $27.2 millions in FY-1993 to $34.1 millions in FY-1997. Fines and Fee collection also improved in the past five years while Charges for Government Services continued to drop in the same period. Of the $97.3 total grants received by the local government in FY-1997, $70.2 millions were Special Revenue (i.e. Federal Grants, Hurricane Val Funds and Deficit Reduction Funds).

With a new list of additional expenditure categories in the FY-1997 Government Financial Report, it was difficult to appropriately discuss trends of functional expenditure. However, the overall pattern indicated continuous growth in government spending (moving at an average annual rate of 12.6 percent in the past five years.) This growth increased from $97.3 millions in FY-1993 to $126.2 millions in FY-1995, and then to $152.3 millions in FY-1997. Health and Education Services spent close to 60 percent of the government bill.

LABOR FORCE, EMPLOYMENT AND EARNINGS

From the census of 2000, total labor force (persons employed and unemployed) amounted to 17,664. Of those, 16,718 were employed and 909 (5.2 percent) were looking for work. Over 11,000 (67.9 percent) employed were for private wage and salary workers versus 5,002 (29.9 percent) in government jobs. Except for the fiscal year 1999, government employment continued to drop as some government department became authorities. The number of government contract employees also dropped from almost a 1,000 in 2000 to 421 in 2001. Likewise, career service government employees dropped from a high of 3,897 in 1999 to 3,126 in 2001.

New minimum wages went into effect in 2001. The highest increase in minimum wages was recorded for Shipping Activities and Finance and Insurance with an addition of 11 cents to previous wages. The highest minimum wage was for Shipping-Stevedoring with $4.03 and the lowest being Miscellaneous Activities with only $2.54 per hour. Average hourly wages were much higher as reported in the Minimum Wage Hearing. Miscellaneous Activities had the highest average wage of $7.01 an hour and the lowest average wage was for Fish Canning and Processing with $3.43 an hour.

Average household income in 1994 dropped from $16,114 recorded for 1989 to $15,715. The change in household composition and a decline in number of persons in household may have contributed to the drop in average household income. The per capita income on the other hand increased from $3,039 to $3,270 in the same period. More than 10 percent of households had less than $5,000 total income and 56 percent of all households were below the national poverty level.

Section Eleven

CONSUMER PRICES AND EXPENDITURE

This section presents data on the local Consumer Price Index (CPI), average prices of selected commodities normally purchased by households and annual household expenditure.

The American Samoa CPI is designed to measure price changes of commodities and services normally purchased by the local community. Like the U.S. CPI, it is based on the concept of representative “market basket”; a sample of goods and services the consumer purchased. The local CPI began in 1974. Weight distributions (representing relative value of commodity purchases to total expenditure) are aggregated to obtain CPI Group Indices and Sub-Group Indices. Two major revisions were done on the CPI: the first in 1982 and another in 1997. These revisions were necessary to reflect consumer preferences and market changes.

The 2001 end quarter CPI registered at 106.5 index points (an increase of about 6.5 percent since the third quarter of 1997. The average inflation in 2001 was 1.3 percent compared to 1.9 percent inflation in 2000.

Household expenditure was last collected in 1995. That survey reported over $204 million worth of local spending. More than 50 percent of household spending was on food and housing. Special expenditure such as church activities and family “fa’alavelave” accounted for 21 percent of total expenditure. Regular expenditure (expenses usually done on a monthly basis) correlates to demand for services and active community participation. For instance, about 96 percent of households paid for electricity; 90 percent of households donated or contributed to Church and related activities; 91 percent of all households spent money on family “fa’alavelave” one way or another.

AGRICULTURE AND FISHING

For more than 150 years, the US Department of Commerce, Bureau of the Census, conducted the census of agriculture. For American Samoa, the agriculture census was carried out in conjunction with the population and housing every ten years. The 1997 Appropriations Act transferred the responsibility from the Bureau of Census to the US Department of Agriculture (USDA), National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS). The 1999 Census of Agriculture for American Samoa is the first census in American Samoa conducted by NASS.

The 1999 Agricultural statistics collected represent all places in American Samoa with agricultural operations during calendar year 1998. A farm was defined as any place that raised or produced any agricultural products for sale or consumption. Approximately 75 percent of all households in American Samoa fit this definition. Commercial farm on the other hand was defined as those farms with sales of $100 or more. Many of the commercial farms produced more for home consumption than for sale, but by virtue of having sales in excess of $100 are classified as commercial.

The number of farms has gone up five times mainly because of the new approach in conducting agriculture census, which gives more meaningful statistics than previously counted. A total of 6,473 farms were counted versus only 1,126 in 1990. Farms are small (average of 3 acres) and in total covers 41 percent of total land area.

Fruits and vegetables sold at the Fagatogo Market have dropped in 2001. Stable food such as taro sold at the market dropped drastically from 183,000 lbs to 9,000 lbs.

Local fishing activities recorded a total of about 601,000 lbs of catch utilizing 73 boats manned by 237 fishermen. The average catch in 2001 dropped down to a 1995 average of a little over 8,000 lbs. Longlining accounted for 87 percent of total catch followed by bottom fishing with 8 percent.

Section Fifteen

ELECTRICITY AND WATER

This section presents statistics on electricity production, consumption, sales, number of electric meters and water use.

Electricity production continued to climb in the five-year series. Over 171 million kwhs were generated in 2001 and 8.6 million kwhs were used up by Station services and building usage. About 95 percent of the net production (163 million kwhs) was sold to the local community. The remainder represents the line loss of about 9 percent. Fuel cost had gone up from an average of $0.59 per gallon in 1999 to an all time high of $1.07. Fuel efficiency on the other hand slightly went up from 15.21 kwhs per gallon to 15.37.

Of the over 10,000 meters reported by the agency, about 87 percent were for residential use and about 8 percent for commercial use. Of the kwhs sold, 42 percent was sold to large power users; another 40 percent to residential users; 37 percent to commercial users; 21 used by government and the remainder of 17 percent used by the agency.

Water sales and production are provided by month for the last two years.
